HISTORY OF O'SULLIVAN'S

An 1890s' Road House, the building at 7244 West Madison street has been home to O'Sullivan's Public House since 2003. Prior to being remodeled, the building housed the Park Lounge and the Lee Choi restaurant. Many Forest Park residents fondly remember the dance floor and organ that were located near the front of the old Park Lounge. Prior to the Park Lounge, the bar was known as The Two Bills Pub.

During the remodeling the copper ceiling, which had been painted over, was discovered under a drop ceiling. Each section of the ceiling had to be removed, the paint stripped and the copper cleaned, prior to being reinstalled. In addition, the copper walls were restored to their original condition. The floor is also the original terrazzo tile that was installed in the 1890s. The stained glass skylight covers a former dumbwaiter which allowed food prepared in the upstairs kitchen to be sent and served at the bar. The foot-rest of the bar is a former fireman's pole from a Chicago fire station. The wooden tables and chairs were purchased from The Berghoff restaurant when they closed their downtown location. In 2010, a retractable roof was added to the beer garden, allowing the space to be used year round.

In 1990, Dan, Paul and Matt Sullivan opened the original O'Sullivan's Public House on Circle Avenue in Forest Park. They sold the business in 1998. Matt Sullivan, Jim and Dan Watts opened the current location in 2003. O'Sullivan's takes pride in our great food, loyal customers, and friendly staff. We welcome you and invite you to come back often.
